CURATOR TALK

Quentin Sprague will discuss the curation of the exhibition The world is not a foreign land, which is an Ian Potter Museum of Art and NETS Victoria touring exhibition.

This exhibition of Aboriginal artworks crosses three geographically and culturally distinct regions—the Tiwi Islands, the Kimberley, and North-eastern Arnhem Land—each artist presents sometimes strikingly different perspectives on what constitutes Indigenous contemporary art.

However, seen together, their work also reveals a series of productive and meaningful relationships; a network of connections that ask audiences to reconsider how certain objects and, by extension, certain practices, might relate beyond the confines of existing categories.
